

'S BEACH PARTY 18

ants Needed!

ants
two and

fety
her

st 2

day
ore

together for a healthier world™

a/Urticaria
diseases

Mr Lee's kitchen before (left) and after the free home makeover.

HELP FOR THE NEEDY

Free home makeover

PART-TIME crane operator Lee Kim Seng and his family of seven are now living in a newly-renovated three-room flat in Kim Keat Avenue without having paid a single cent for the makeover.

Thanks to a community project by the Renovation and Decoration Advisory Council (Radac), the Lees were one of two needy families selected to receive a free home makeover in March.

Mr Lee and his wife, who is a part-time cashier, have not been able to afford renovation works, as their youngest son, a seven-year-old, suffers a kidney condition. All his five children are still in school.

The other family selected lives in a three-room flat in Yishun.

"It is our wish that this meaningful initiative will provide the impetus for other organisations to contribute, in their own

It is our wish that this meaningful initiative will provide the impetus for other organisations to contribute, in their own ways, to society.

Renovation and Decoration Advisory Council

ways, to society," said Radac, a non-profit body that promotes high standards of conduct in the renovation industry and educates consumers on renovation issues.

Radac will launch a video of the home makeovers during its three-day roadshow at the Toa Payoh HDB Hub Mall, which starts tomorrow. ESTHER FUNG